

Leisure and Sights

in the Ramstein and Kaiserslautern area

Welcome to the Ramstein and Kaiserslautern Area!

We would like to invite you to explore the area that has a lot to offer. Centrally located in the heart of the Palatinate, this region with its diversified and pristine scenery is a paradise for nature lovers. The rolling hills, broad fields, lush pastures, sandstone rocks and restful forest groves are the perfect landscape to enjoy outdoor activities. Hikers and bikers find numerous well-marked and certified trails. At the southern edge of the region spreads the Palatinate Forest nature reserve, the largest continuous forest area in Germany. That is where you find a Mountain Bike Park with a trail network of a length of over 300 km in total. With the Western Palatinate Moor and the Mehlingen Heath two natural peculiarities are located in the center of the region. The Donnersberg Mountain raises in the north, with a height of 687 meters the highest elevation in the Palatinate.

Stony traces of the past like mighty castle ruins, ancient churches, abbeys and historic sites steeped in legend wait to be discovered by you. Traces of the Celts can be found near the Donnersberg Mountain. In the Celtic village and the Celtic garden in Steinbach this particular era becomes alive. Dreamy castle ruins are reminiscences of the times of knights and noblewomen. In the Sickingenstadt Landstuhl with its landmark "Nanstein Castle" the memory of Franz von Sickingen, one of the last knights who resided here, is omnipresent.

Also culture lovers will find plenty to enjoy. A large number of museums with the focus on a variety of subjects cater for all tastes. To visit cultural events like concerts, shows and musicals you have the choice between several popular stages and theaters.

For the ones seeking rest and relaxation the outdoor and indoor pools, spas and saunas are the perfect location to take a time out from the daily hustle and bustle. In the hot summer months you might be interested in chilling down yourself in one of the swimming lakes, e.g. Gelterswoog Lake near Kaiserslautern or Eiswoog Lake near Ramsen. Or you take a stroll around Ohmbach Lake near Schönenberg-Kübelberg or relax in the Japanese Garden in Kaiserslautern.

Little guests might prefer a visit to the Azur Water World in Ramstein or the Kaiserslautern Gartenschau with its great playgrounds and the largest dinosaur exhibition in Europe.

As you see there is something to do here for every taste. This pocket guide offers more than 80 descriptions of places of interest and leisure time facilities. Divided into nine chapters you will find information about sights to see and things to do in the Ramstein and Kaiserslautern area, no matter if you are a family with children, a sports enthusiast, a culture lover or interested in historical landmarks.

Now enjoy your stay and feel at home! You are cordially welcome!

Castles

Historic Landmarks

Nanstein Castle

The landmark of the Sickingen town of Landstuhl is Nanstein Castle. It was erected in 1150 A.D. by Emperor Friedrich Barbarossa (Friedrich I) above a 15 meter high sandstone ledge. The castle was part of a fortification system of the Hohenstaufen Dynasty in the Palatinate. It is the place where Franz von Sickingen, one of the last knights, died in 1523 A.D. during the battle for the castle. The castle contains building material from five centuries. In summer it serves as the stage for performances of the Landstuhl Castle Plays.

Imperial Palace and Casimir Castle incl. Count Palatine Hall

Unfortunately both don't exist any longer - neither Barbarossa's Kaiserpfalz (Imperial Palace) nor the renaissance castle which the Count Palatine had built directly in his vicinity. But the spectacular building hasn't fully disappeared. The ruins which were given a roof and christened the "Pfalzgrafensaal" (Count Palatine Hall) in 1935 are well worth seeing, and in the former living room (or did he perhaps sleep here?) of the "hunter from the electoral Palatinate" today official receptions of the city are held. The Count Palatine Hall and the subterranean passages from the Hohenstaufen period can be seen on guided tours which last about 1 hour (price 45,00 EUR per group with a maximum turnout of 25 people).

Celtic Prince's Grave and Tribunal Site

In 1874 a Celtic grave dated to the time around 400 B.C. was discovered in Rodenbach. It has since been known as the "Prince's grave of Rodenbach" and is considered the most important find from the La Tène period north of the Alps. In the immediate vicinity of the burial mound there is the reproduction of a tribunal discovered in the year 1595. The site is open for visitors from April till October.

Falkenstein Castle

Even today, the castle ruin rises above the community located southwest of the foothills of the Donnersberg Mountain. The castle was the ancestral seat of the Falkenstein counts. Besides the wonderful view, the castle ruin with its adjacent open air stage offers a suitable venue for castle tours in the moonlight, literary hikes, geo-tours, concerts and medieval markets.

Moschellandsburg Castle

Even if the commencements of the Moschellandsburg Castle remain untold, documentary evidence from 1130 proves that a castle complex was constructed on the Landsberg Mountain already in the early years of the last millennium. A visit to the castle ruin clearly shows that the cone-shaped mountain was eminently suitable for the construction of the castle: the mountain majestically dominates the landscape between the Donnersberg Mountain and the foothills of the Hunsrück Mountains. Today the castle ruin offers an enchanting backdrop for cultural events.

Rosenthal Convent

The Cistercian convent St. Maria in Rosenthal located south of Göllheim was founded in 1241. The church was built according to the early Gothic style. Today, the single-nave abbey church consists of wall remains with buttresses and the western gable that sustains the turret with its extraordinary roof which is the landmark of Rosenthal. The church ruin is the venue for cultural events such as concerts, the annual Christmas bell-ringing and weddings.

Roman Settlement

According to finds of broken fragments, a Roman settlement already existed at the ancient west-east connection to Worms in the 1st century A.D. in the area where nowadays the town of Eisenberg is located. Thanks to favorable preconditions - deposit of iron ore/ wood/ clay - Eisenberg was among the most important towns of the Palatinate in Roman times. 17 houses were excavated and documented. Besides homes, also workshops, stores, a market square, a basilica and an administration building including a police station were found.

Churches

Otterberg Abbey Church

The abbey church was built in the 12th and 13th century in the Romanesque-Gothic style. In its sobriety and ornamental austerity the building corresponds to the rules of the Cistercian order. The abbey church is the largest church in the Palatinate after the Speyer Cathedral.

Stiftskirche (Collegiate Church)

The building is full of history and noteworthy: Even without being an art or church historian, if you look at the Kaiserslautern Collegiate Church you see that it is something special. Above all its "picturesque side" from the Marktstrasse with the "Schöne Brunnen" (fountain) in front of it is impressive (it was first mentioned in 1571). In fact it is considered to be the most important late Gothic hall church in Southwest Germany and is in addition the birthplace of the "Palatine Union" because here the Lutherans and the Reformers in the Palatine joined forces in 1818.

Simultankirche

The structure was built in the 12th century. Originally it was a church with a pilgrims hostelry which was an important stopover for the pilgrims on the "Way of St. James". The church is a little younger than the cathedral of Speyer and is among the oldest and most beautiful cultural monuments in the Palatinate. In 1986 the church was added to the list of "protected cultural heritage" according to the "Hague Convention".

Natural Monuments

Elendsklamm (ravine)

The so-called "Elendsklamm" is a ravine with a length of 3 km (1.9 miles) and is located in the woods near Bruchmühlbach. As it is unique from a historical and a botanical point of view, the ravine is a very impressive natural landmark. It is very narrow and shady. Since the responsible forestry commission office kept the landmark untouched, a primeval piece of woodlands was formed in a way you rarely get to see.

Locally the trail leads along Matzenbach, Glan-Münchweiler, Nanzdietschweiler, Schönenberg-Kübelberg, Waldmohr · Phone: 06373 5040

For the sporty ones:

Start your day with a mountain bike tour in the Palatinate Forest. Its trails of more than 300 kilometers offer the right tour for any taste, in length as well as technical challenge. If you prefer road biking, the Barbarossa Cycle Route is a great option to explore the area by bike. Afterwards you can take a break in one of the various pools, e.g. at Naturerlebnisbad Landstuhl and the attached Cubo spa and sauna. With your batteries recharged your sports program continues in the afternoon. For golfers the courses at the southern slope of the Donnersberg Mountain in Böttstadt or the golf course in Mackenbach offer a wide range of playing opportunities. A real adventure will be a visit to the KI High Ropes Course Fröhnerhof where you can discover the joy of climbing. How do you like the idea of attending a German Bundesliga soccer match of the 1. FC Kaiserslautern at the Fritz Walter Stadium in the evening? Or you have a bowling competition at Planet Bowling in Kaiserslautern.

Family Day:

Travel back 2000 years in time to the age of the Celts. At the Celtic Village in Steinbach, an unusual outdoor museum, you will not only find a reconstruction of a Celtic settlement. In various workshops you can explore traditional arts and crafts of the Celts, what is a fun thing to do not only for young visitors. If your kids are fond of dinosaurs, they will be amazed by a visit to the Kaiserslautern Gartenschau. This idyllic outdoor park is the home of the biggest dinosaur exhibition in Europe and has great playgrounds and lots of space to romp around. At Lake Ohmbach near Schönenberg-Kübelberg children will enjoy a boat ride with a pedal boat or the water playground with a giant slide. And if you bring along your tent, you can even stay overnight. A campground is located next to the lake.

In winter time or in case of rainy weather an alternative for indoor activities would be a visit to the Kinder Spiel und Spaß Fabrik, a spacious indoor playground in Kaiserslautern or spending the day at the AZUR Water World, the family-friendly pool in Ramstein. For evening entertainment check the schedule of Broadway Kino, there might be a family movie shown in English.

For culturally interested visitors:

The Palatinate Gallery of Art in Kaiserslautern is one of the oldest and varied art museums in Rhineland-Palatinate. The permanent collection shows paintings and sculptures of the 19th, 20th and 21st century. You will get to see works of the well-known Palatinate artist Max Slevogt as well as graphic works of Pablo Picasso. Temporary exhibitions present international contemporary artists to the visitors. Since Ramstein Air Base was established in the 1950s the Americans have deeply influenced this region. The information containers of the Docu Center Ramstein will give you an insight into interesting facts of this long-lasting German-American partnership. For the evening check the schedules of the numerous cultural institutions. Either seeing an opera at the Palatinate Theater, listening to a classical concert at the Fruchthalle, hearing a rock band perform at the Kammgarn (all three located in Kaiserslautern) or watching a musical at the Stadthalle Landstuhl or at Haus des Bürgers Ramstein, for sure you will find the right venue to suit your interests.

For hikers and nature lovers:

The impressive "Elendsklamm" ravine is a natural monument near the town of Bruchmühlbach that is unique due to its geological and botanical diversity. Even on hot summer days this is a cool and shady place for a hike. Right in the center of Kaiserslautern you can discover the Far Eastern art of gardening. The largest Japanese Garden in Europe is the right place to draw energy and peace from the artistically designed harmony of light and shadows, plants and stones, water and paths. With this regained energy you will manage some kilometers on the "Höhenweg" (high route) in the Donnersberg region. The certified hiking trail leads you to the highest elevation in the Palatinate, the Donnersberg Mountain and rewards you with spectacular views.

For visitors interested in history:

You will find various proofs that this region was already settled over 2000 years ago. The Roman settlement in Eisenberg is one of these antique discoveries. The excavations show a whole village and give an insight into daily life at the times of the Romans. The numerous castles and castle ruins date back to the time of knights and noblemen. Nanstein Castle is the landmark of the Sickingen town Landstuhl. During your visit you will learn about the checkered history of the castle ruin and about the last knight who resided here: Franz von Sickingen. After him the city was named. Just ask for the self-guided castle information leaflet in English at the entrance. The signposted loop trails of the "Accessible History" Book around Schönenberg-Kübelberg invite you to a journey through the time and history of the region. Information boards marking historic landmarks and scenic spots along the trails will tell you interesting details.

Wellness Day:

Take some time out at the monte mare indoor pool, sauna and wellness paradise. Among the various treatments offered you will find the perfect option to get some rest and relaxation. Afterwards treat yourself with a delicate cup of coffee and tasty home-made cake at the coffee manufactory Reismühle in Krottelbach. The right place to promote your health is the Vogelquelle Water-Treading Basin in Vogelbach. Wading through the cool spring water in the basin is supposed to have positive effects on your cardiovascular system.

Dear readers,
